Banks Find Improved Record Keeping with Venali Internet Fax

No more paper shuffling for banking institutions who utilize Venali Internet Fax

THE COMPANY

Because of the pressure of regulatory obligations, banks and other financial service providers are always searching for new technology to make recordkeeping simpler to stay competitive in the market. Customers expect the best in service from their financial institutions and communications are vital to the success of these banks. The high volume of confidential and time sensitive faxes can cause many problems including busy signals, bottlenecking and misplaced papers.

documents for electronic storage. It is also simple to forward faxes like emails to other recipients.

Faxing is still a vital part of most financial institutions. With Venali, banks save time and money, establish better record keeping and increase response time to customers.
